

GIMBER is looking for a captain for its marketing frigates. What the fancy people call a “marketing director”. Not afraid of big storms or shortages, harsh feedback and multiple throwbacks. With a creative brain to create what is not yet imagined possible.

With the audacity to take his crew to unknown horizons and to temper their insatiable ardor. A captain who drinks our beverage pure and in one gulp. A captain who wants to build with us a rebellious world where humans become masters of their own destiny again by offering them the sacred beverage that strengthens their hearts and minds. Cunning as a monk, wise as a fox. As tough ofline as the Mammoth, as fast online as the Cheetah. Ready to leave for the ports of the world. Committed to his/her mission that makes even the gods tremble.

The job pays poorly. But glory awaits you if you succeed.

This is you?

Or you know where this fellow is hiding. Contact us.